

FUNDERS CONCERNED ABOUT AIDS MEMBERSHIP GUIDE

ESSENTIAL RESOURCES FOR HIV-INFORMED GRANTMAKERS

WELCOME

Welcome to Funders Concerned About AIDS (FCAA)!

Funders Concerned About AIDS (FCAA) is a philanthropy-serving organization (PSO) founded in 1987 to take bold actions and push philanthropy to respond to HIV and AIDS. Our intent then and now: to inform, connect, and support philanthropy in response to the global pandemic of HIV and AIDS.

OUR MISSION

FCAA informs, connects, and supports philanthropy to mobilize resources to end the global HIV pandemic and build the social, political and economic commitments necessary to attain health, human rights, and justice for all.

OUR VISION

FCAA envisions a world without AIDS.

THE VALUE OF PSO MEMBERSHIP

As a connected and coordinated community of funders, we can be a stronger voice for a comprehensive investment for the people and places most impacted by HIV and AIDS. Collectively, we better understand where the money is going, how it is changing, and where the need may be the greatest. By sharing information and advocating for a stronger, collective response, we can better influence our own individual institutions, donor governments, and the philanthropic field.

It is crucial to continue building and investing in donor networks across these sectors and to develop a coordinated response for people and communities that continue to be marginalized by government and society and that are disproportionately impacted by HIV — including Black women, gay and bisexual men, transgender women, sex workers, and people who use drugs in the U.S. and global South.

Today, more than 50 philanthropic foundations and charities currently support FCAA as contributors. These organizations collectively account for roughly half of total HIV-related philanthropy each year.

“When funders come together in a coordinated way, they can be a powerful group. That’s why FCAA events – like the FCAA Global Philanthropy Summit – are so important. Stakeholders come together to challenge one another to use our voices and philanthropic resource to support advocacy for policies and funding needed to end the epidemic.”

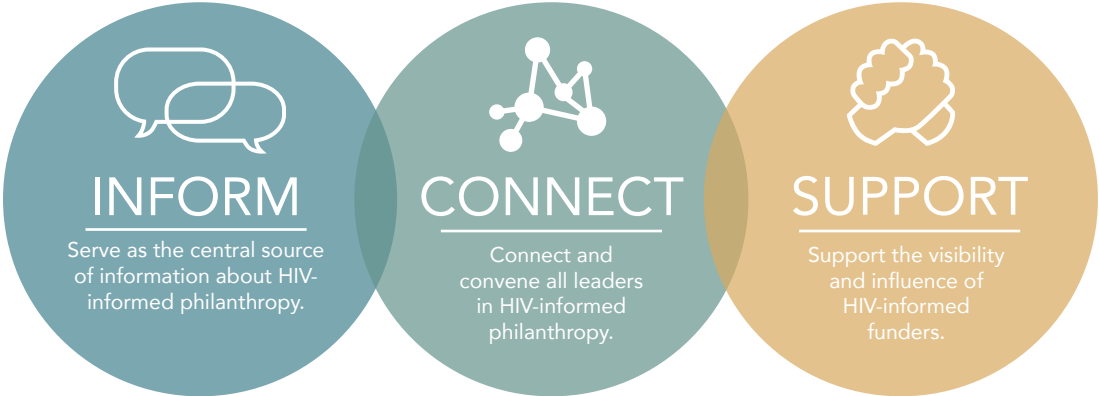

–Jesse Milan, Jr., AIDS United

“Being a part of this community gives me the chance to introduce other funders to the issues facing communities that we serve, and to coordinate philanthropy’s response to growing anti-LGBTQ+ repression in the Eastern Africa Region.”

– FCAA Member

CONNECT

Strategy: FCAA will connect and convene all leaders in HIV-related philanthropy.

Goal: Funders will be connected and aligned through regular convenings and collaborations.

Member Opportunities

Attending a Networking Event or Webinar

We hold many events, both large scale meetings and more intimate discussions, throughout the year. For example, at FCAA's Global Philanthropy Summit, we mobilize members to share good practices and strategies to increase the amount and impact of HIV-related philanthropy, while also providing space for networking and community building.

At events such as the Advocacy Forum and the global donor networking reception at the biennial International AIDS Conference, we gather diverse groups of stakeholders to assess the landscape and identify concrete action steps to ensure continued progress in funding the HIV fight. FCAA also organizes regular online discussions and webinars among members about developments and challenges in global health and human rights.

Joining a Working Group

FCAA working groups are member-driven platforms that provide learning and networking opportunities among funders looking to mobilize resources and bring heightened awareness to specific issues in HIV-informed philanthropy.

Current and recent working groups have focused on such issues as HIV in Eastern Europe and Central Asia, the COVID-19 pandemic, and racial justice.

“In 2021, FCAA and Aidsfonds partnered to launch a new donor working group to highlight critical programming and resourcing needs in Eastern Europe and Central Asia. After the invasion of Ukraine, this working group quickly pivoted to address the crisis and its impact on HIV-affected key populations. In the first five weeks of the conflict, private donors pledged $1.5 billion in humanitarian response. Being connected to other funders through FCAA makes fast-acting and critical response like this possible.”

– Mark Vermeulen, Aidsfonds

SUPPORT

Strategy: FCAA will support the visibility and influence of HIV-related funders.

Goal: Funders will be visible and influential in translating commitment and experience into action.

Funder Initiatives

From PEPFAR to PrEP, we have made incredible advancements across the world to prevent and treat HIV these last 40 years - we finally have the medical knowledge and tools to bring an end to AIDS in our lifetimes. Yet intersecting structural and societal barriers – including stigma and discrimination, economic disparities, racial injustice, gender inequality, criminalisation, migration, geopolitical conflict, and inequitable access to healthcare – conspire to keep the vision of a post-AIDS future out of reach. Indeed, the experiences of people living with and vulnerable to HIV bring to light what is often hiding in the shadows. For example, we commonly see new HIV transmissions climb within countries impacted by political repression, anti-LGBTQ+ policies, war, and other crises.

FCAA will relaunch an Advocacy Network to regularly convene funders and stakeholders to keep a pulse on the political landscape surrounding our work, and to understand where, and when, to weigh in as a collective membership.

Resources and Tools

In response to members' needs and gaps identified in our research, FCAA develops resources and tools to support your grantmaking. As one example, in partnership with the FCAA Racial Justice Working Group, FCAA developed the Racial Justice in HIV Philanthropy Guiding Principles to help change how funders approach philanthropy.

Visibility

Through media and stakeholder outreach and coalition building, FCAA works to promote the leadership of philanthropy in the global HIV response.

“FCAA programming brings a critical intersectional lens to HIV and AIDS issues. GATE was invited to a session that helped connect issues of anti-gender and anti-abortion movements to their impact on HIV. FCAA offering engagement opportunities like this make it possible for e to raise awareness of trans-specific issues, and their intersection with the HIV movement across philanthropic networks.”

– Erika Castellanos, GATE
